RATTLE OF THE RAILS

The Montana Central Taking Precautionary Measures Against Blockades.

RAILROADING IN MIDWINTER

Trains Almost Buried in Huge Snow Drifts-The Northern Pacific's Absorption of the Wisconsin Central System Completed.

BUTTE, March 2.-The first serious trouble of the winter because of the snow is being experienced by the Union Pacific at present. Yesterday's storm extended about the entire length of the Utah Northern, at least as far south as Pocatello. So heavy was the fail of snow, and so badly did it drift, that it was found necessary to have the rotary snow plow sent on the road as far north as Dillon, something never before heard of, former drifts al-ways being confined to Beaver canyon and the country south of there.

To-day's incoming train was almost seven hours behind time at 5 o'clock this seven hours behind time at a o'clock this afternoon. The delay was caused by an engine becoming derailed in Beaver canyon on account of the snow which was packed so hard as to make it impossible for the engine to remain on the track. The delay caused a rumor to the effect that a bad wreck had occurred and many people had been injured. This, however, proved to be untrue and nothing more serious than the accident already mentioned took place. accident already mentioned took place.

The Montana Central proposes to have no more snow blockades, if proper precaution will prevent them. A rotary snow plow is now kept between this city and Helena, and is constantly running over the line. To-day it left Helena, but did not proceed any farther than Boulder, no drifts existing this side of that point. Several of the same kind of drift-demolishers are also in use on the road east of Helena and the track is kept clear. To-day's trains were only slightly behind schedule time.

The main line of the Northern Pacific is reported clear its enure length and trains are running almost on regular accident already mentioned took place.

trains are running almost on regular time. The branch roads are not so for-tunate, however, and on some of them traffic is virtually suspended.

A special train of five coaches arrived here this evening on the Utah Northern to take the Juch opera company south immediately after the performance tonight. The train was drawn by two engines and for eight hours was detained at gines and for eight hours was detained at Dillion because of a huge snow drift which blockaded the track between that point and Apex. The rotary snow plow pushed by two engines finally managed to clear the track and the train was then attached to the plow and reached this city shortly after 7 o clock, drawn by four engines.

Four freight trains were also blockaded by the drift and a short distance preceeding them was another train of eight box cars and two engines, which was almost buried out of sight and could not move until after the rotary had cleared the way. The road is now open from Butte to Pocatello. Not a train left. Silver Bow for the South to-day until after the ar-rival of the special.

To-day the Northern Pacific completed its absorption of the Wisconsin Central system and scored quite a point against the other transcontinental roads in that it secured a continuous route from Chicago to the coast. Through passengers can now go from Chicago to Perdand via Butte, or vice versa, without change of cars, a fact the passenger department will not overlook in bidding for through will not overlook in bidding for through traffic.

The Wisconsin Central leased to the Northern Pacific the right to run trains to Chicago in May, 1889. On April 1, 1899, this was changed to a lease for which the Northern Pacific agreed to pay 35 percent of the gross earnings. The Wisconsin Central will be operated as a division of the great transcontinental system. This step has been officially contemplated ever since the old agreement and lease went since the old agreement and lease went into effect, but those concerned have avoided open discussion of the subject until to-day, when the official promulgauntil to-day, when the official promugation was made. Owing to the terms of the Wisconsin charter the name of the old line cannot be dropped, and all equipment, both new and old, will therefore be labeled, "Northern Pacific railway (Wisconsin Central division)." This step brings about the long anticipated consoindation of agencies, the non-occurrence of which has been a matter of surprise and comment during the past 12 months. Circulars are now being prepared, but their exact nature has not been disclosed, nor is it yet fully known just what disposition of the two forces of officers will be made. The Northern Pacific, of course, is the big fish and all old and trustworthy employes of that line will enjoy precedence and preference. Further than this, speculation ensues. General Manager Mellen will have full control, aided by Traffic Manager Hannaford, General Freight Agent Moore and General Passenger Agent Fee. But what becomes of the Central people of the same relative rank is yet to be learned. In all probability, however, they will figure for the present as the company's executive corns at Chicago. tion was made. Owing to the terms of present as the company's executive corps at Chicago.

The Union Pacific has completed an arrangement with the Northern Facilie by which it can now sell round trip tickets to the coast good returning over the latter road. The Northern Pacific, by the same arrangement, has the privilege of selling excursion tickets good returning over the

H. S. Wallace, district superintendent of the Puliman Car company, S. S. Morris, assistant superintendent of the Idaho division of the Union Pacific and E. C. Manson, trainmaster of the same division, arrived this evening on the special train which is to take the Juch company train which to Ogden.

HE CUTS A WIDE SWATH But Chief Carroll Will Get Hold of Him

One of There Days. BUTTE, March 2.-Chief Carroll would give a nice little sum to any person fur-nishing him with sufficient evidence to warrant the arrest of a certain well-dressed loafer and rounder who spends much of his time hanging about gambling houses and like resorts. The man referred to is known to spend large amount of money almost daily and cuts a wide swath in certain disreputable circles, yet he is not a phenomenally successful gambler, and where he gets the money he spends so lavishly is a mystery. He is strongly suspected of complicity in sev-eral robberies and thefts committed re-cently, but the fellow is shrewd enough cently, but the fellow is shrewd enough to cover his tracks so completely as to make it impossible to secure any testimony against him. Circumstances exist strong enough to convince the police that he is the author of one if not all the letters written to parties recently robbed, and in which the boast is made that the writer of the letters is exempt from arrest because of alleged "puils" he has. He is also suspected of being the party that stoic C. P. Hill's valuable overcoat a few weeks ago. So strong is this suspicion that several persons during the last few days have openly connected his name with the theft, but, as in the other robberies referred to, the proof against him is not sufficient to warrant his arrest, because no conviction could be made him is not sufficient to warrant his arrest, begause no conviction could be made to follow. Although the fellow has a most estimable wife, he neglects her absolutely and spends his time in the company of prostitutes and their like, among whom he poses as a "high roller,"
and whose friendship he prizes above that of respectable people. The advisability of arresting the fellow as a vagrant and pimp has often been discussed by the police, but under the construction placed upon the law relating to vagrancy by the police, but under the construction placed upon the law relating to vagrancy by the minor courts, it would be impossible to convict him, as he would have no difficulty in proving by witnesses of his own kind that he was possessed of money enough to enable him to live and that he had a regular abiding place.

AN INTERESTING CASE. A Simple Civil Lawsuit Develops Into a Bitter Quarrel.

BUTTE, March 2 -Judge McHatton listened to the arguments in the certiorari proceedings recently instituted in the dis trict court by Chancellor O'Donnell in the case of A. McMilian vs. John Hunter. Mention of this case in previous issues of the STANDARD has already familiarized the public with the circumstances of the case. Originating as a simple civil case, it has developed into a bitter quarrel between the chancellor and Judge Eddy, in whose court the action was originally brought. The chancellor maintains that a final judgment was entered up against his cheat, John Hunter, although the latter never confessed judgment and never committed a real default. He claims that the summons requiring funter's appearance was issued on the figures appearance was issued on the eighth of the month and made returnable on the eleventh, contrary to the statute which fixes the lowest limit between the issuance and return of a summons. The copy of the summons which was left with Hunter is said to have required his appearance on the 13th, two days later than Hunter is said to have required his appearance on the 13th, two days later than the original. So Mr. Hunter turned upon the 13th to find a judgment entered up against him. The chancellor asserts that Judge Eddy told him that he thought Hunter confessed judgment. In his affl-davit used in evidence to-day Judge Eddy swore positively that Hunter did confess judgment. John Hunter's afflidavit that he did not confess judgment is opposed to Judge Eddy's. After hearing the arguments in the case, the court took the matter under advisement.

IN THE POLICE COURT. C. A. Jones Acquitted of a Charge of In terfering With an Officer. BUTTE, March 2.-About two months go C. A. Jones was arrested for interfering with an officer. Through various causes hearing of the case was continued from time to time until at last the trial took place in the police court this afternoon. While it was proved that the de femant might have been a little "previous," the testimony was not suf-ficient to convict him of the offense charged and he was acquitted.

charged and he was acquitted.

Frank Burk, who was arrested yesterday while trying to pick a man's pocket, pleaded not guilty to the charge of attempted robbery. His examination will take place to-morrow afternoon.

Owing to the inability of the officers to find the complaining witness, the trial of Mrs. Johnson for assault and battery on her daughter was continued until Wednesday afternoon.

her daughter was continued until wed-nesday afternoon.

Joseph Koehler, the man whose dialect letter appeared in the STANDARD a few days ago, was tried for disturbing the peace. He was found guilty and in de-iault of $5 and costs was committed.

Bill Banks was fined $10 and costs for assault and battery. William was sent up.

John McG-lory paid $5 and costs for un-necessarily disturbing the peace.

A SUDDEN DEATH.

physician had been in attendance, and Webb's death was very sudden. So when the body was brought to the Butte when the body was brought to the butter Furniture company's undertaking rooms, the coroner was immediately notified and held an inquest. The wife of the deceased and another woman were examined, but their testimony developed no suspicious circumstances. Webb had been complaining for some Webb had been complaining for some time, but no serious results were leared. All the medicine he had taken was rum and molasses, which his wife had prepared for him, thinking he was affleted by a severe cold. About 10 o'clock Saturday evening he grew worse and was very restless until midnight, when another change came and he became quiet, but still breathed very rapidly. They fancied him better, but at 2 o'clock he suddenly died. The deceased was a man about 30 years of age and had been five years married. He came here from Rome, N. Y., to which point his remains will be shipped to-morrow morning.

TWO CROOKS SET FREE

The Evidence Was Not Strong Enough to Hold "English Bill" and His Pal.

ORDERED TO LEAVE BUTTE

Shou'd They Attempt to Remain Their Lives Will Be Made Un-happy-Something in Regard to Stewart's Ball Bond.

BUTTE, March 2 .- John Stewart, alias "English Bill," and Charles Smith, the two crooks, were examined before Judge Newkirk this morning on a charge of burgiary. The witnesses for the prosecu-tion either lied when they made the statements that caused them to be sub-poenaed or else they lied on the stand, for the evidence adduced was not strong enough to convince the court of the guilt of the men and they were discharged. They were ordered, however, to leave the eny immediately on penalty of being prosecuted for vagrancy.

Great dependance was placed on the testimony of Neille Rogers, the woman who made the statements implicating "Engish Bill" in several robberies committed recently, but when she was on the who made the statements implicating "Engissi Bill" in several robberies committed recently, but when she was on the stand her story was not as strong as when told at a time when it was not so much to the crook's injury. It may only be a coincidence, still it is rather remarkable that the woman pawned a number of diamonds at one of the pawnshops for $150 the night Stewart was a rested and that Jack Buckley left word shorny afterward to be called if the police would accept bonds for Stewart so that he could act as bondsman for the crook. The police refused to take bonds and the cockney had to remain in juil until the next morning when he was released by Judge Newkirk on a bond of $100, which was furnished by Buckley, who the night before declared that he did not know Stewart and would have nothing to do with him. Those who heard Buckley make the statement thought it strange when they learned the next day that he had deposited a cash bond of $100 for the appearance of a total stranger arrested on a charge of felony, but that surprise will now probably pass away. It now looks as though Buckley acted only as a go between for Nelice Rogers and the crook and that the money he deposited for Stewart's appearance was a part of the amount the woman realized by pawning her diamonds and not his own, as at first supposed.

Stewart and Smith will probably attempt to run a bluff to remain in the city, but this they will find a hard matter to do, as the police will arrest them every day if necessary and keep them behind the bars as much as possible in spite of the efforts of the "good people" who are such staunch friends and admirers of the crooks. Should the two other crooks now in jail get the expected money to pay their fines they will also receive prompt notice to leave the city at once or if will be made a troubled dream for them.

LOTTA AT MAGUIRE'S.

The Incomparable Little Sprite Will Appear in Butte Next Monday. By the Standard's Special Wire,

BUTTE, March 2.-Lotta will be at the opera house next Monday. The little lady is not famous only in this land, but throughout Europe. She is to the American stage what Judic is to the French, and can stage what Judic is to the French, and more so as Lotta possesses a magnetism and individuality which finds a permanent abiding place in every American heart. Lotta began her career in California, and all Californians take a particular pride in "their Lotta," and while Lotta unquestionably recognizes California as her home, yet every city claims her as its own favorite. No theaters in the largest cities are large enough to hold her audiences. She is the one, the only and incomparable Lotta. Hosts of imitators have from time to time striven to get a comparative recto time striven to get a comparative recognition, but so far all have been failures. In a word, she is what the late John Brougham so aptly called her "a dramatic cocktail."
